

G St 641: Readings in Global History: Gender

SARAH ISOM CENTER FOR WOMEN'S STUDIES

This course examines mid-century feminist movements from a transnational perspective. It complicates both our understanding of second-wave feminism in an American context and examines feminist movements through case studies around the world. We will question what kinds of activist work count as feminist and consider new paradigms for understanding feminist work.

3 Credits

Cross-listed Courses

- Hst 641: Readings in Global History: Gender

Subject Areas

- Women's Studies

Related Areas

- African-American/Black Studies
- Ethnic, Cultural Minority, Gender, and Group Studies, Other
- Gay/Lesbian Studies

