

Anth 304: Biological Anthropology

Sociology & Anthropology

Students will learn how anthropologists study biology to understand human origins and modern biological variation. Course sections include basic genetics and epigenetics, the study of human skeletons from forensic and archaeological sites, observations of modern primates such as chimpanzees and monkeys, and identification and analysis of ancient pre-human fossils.

3 Credits

Prerequisites

- Pre-Requisite: 24 Earned Hours

Instruction Type(s)

- Lecture: Lecture for Anth 304

Course Fee(s)

Anthropolgy 3

- $30.00
- $25.00

Subject Areas

- Anthropology

Related Areas

- Physical and Biological Anthropology

