Overview

Degree Requirements

Description

Literature and literary studies are at the core of the humanities and at the center of debates concerning culture, politics, education, and language. The program of study in English not only enriches students' appreciation of literature and engages them in cultural debate but helps develop crucial skills in analytical thinking and clear, persuasive expression both in speech and in writing. An English degree is an ideal gateway for careers that emphasize communication and critical thinking including law, business, journalism, public service, and education.

Minimum Total Credit Hours: 120

Course Requirements

A major in English for the B.A. degree consists of 30 hours in addition to the 200-level literature courses (Eng 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226) required by the College of Liberal Arts. At least 24 hours must be upper-division, including at least 12 hours at the 400 or 500 level. English majors must take Eng 299 (Introduction to Literary Studies) and at least one course in each of three categories as listed below. One of the 400-level courses must be a capstone seminar. See the department website's course descriptions to determine which 400-level courses satisfy the capstone requirement. Eng 198 (Topics in Intro to Creative Writing), Eng 199 (Introduction to Creative Writing) and Eng 299 are the only 100- or 200-level courses that may be counted toward the major. Students cannot receive credit for both Eng 198 and 199. No more than 3 hours of Z-graded coursework may be applied to the major. The following categories must be satisfied:

Other Academic Requirements

The 6 hours of composition required by the College of Liberal Arts are prerequisites for Eng 299. One 200-level English course is the prerequisite for most English courses at the 300 level and above. Some creative writing courses have different prerequisites.

Students cannot earn both a BA in English and a BFA in Creative Writing because courses cannot be shared, and there are not enough unique courses to meet the requirements for both degrees.
